March 2007

To Future Travelers,

About one year ago, we decided to take our band and choir students on an educational music trip to the southern United States. We had many questions regarding cost, transportation, educational places and activities, and generally where to begin the planning of such a trip. That was when we called John Piquette at Integrity Travel, and it was the best decision we could have ever made!

John and his staff at Integrity Travel were very friendly and helpful during the decision making process of where to take our students. He wrote up a few example itineraries for Texas and Florida, including an approximate cost per person. Based on those, we decided on taking buses to San Antonio, Texas during the time period of March 6 – 11, 2007.

During the next six months, we had contacted John many times to discuss the number of students going, the costs, and itinerary details. Every time Amy called, she was recognized immediately and felt like a valued customer as everyone in the office of Integrity Travel was very friendly, accommodating, helpful, and polite.

John went the extra mile to be sure that the trip went off 'without a hitch'. He made the long road trips to our school to meet our principals, discuss travel plans in person, and meet with the parents and students who attended the trip at an evening informational meeting. It was very refreshing to be able to trust that the tiniest details would be taken care of and the questions of concerned parents and students would be answered.

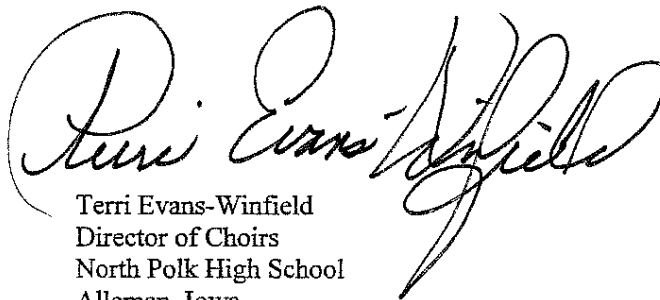

The Texas trip was a great experience! The students gave two performances, one at the Alamo and the other at Sea World. The excursions were very entertaining and of educational value. And, most importantly, each student and adult was able to relax, and enjoy them selves, both on the trip and on our safe return home.

We would strongly recommend the use of Integrity Travel for your next travel experience! Their dedication to pleasing you and the needs of your educational program is beyond words. If you have any questions, don't hesitate to ask John or his friends at Integrity Travel!

Thank you Integrity Travel,
